Introducing ELQ Feverio ELQ Feverio is the name of a new Blender-based game which is being developed by my good friend Kai Morgan and myself, bringing the kind of strategy gaming that was played on computer systems into the modern and world of smartphones and tablets. THE OVERVIEW ELQ Feverio is a real-time strategy simulation game where you're put in command of an alien race's quest to conquer the planet. As you encounter new planets, you'll have to determine what to colonise, which resources you need to unlock new technologies, and manage your resources and humans accordingly. You can then fly to the alien homeworlds and assess your progress, building up a base that you can use as a launchpad for the next wave of colonisation. RULE BREAKER! There is no set order to the game, so you can do whatever you like, but here's a list of suggestions to get you started: 1. Start by colonising 1 planet in each of the game's four available resources, then work on any of the three technologies that relate to your planets' resources. 2. Now that you've unlocked the technology for the planet you're on, set to colonise the next planet in the sequence. Once it's a reality, send your new settlement to the homeworld of the original planet, and then move on to the next planet in your sequence. 3. Once you've moved on to a new planet, see how far you can progress, before coming back to your homeworld. The above points are more for fun than they are for a series of instructions, but they do give a
