Product Description POS for Point of Sale is an integrated software package that gives you a fully-featured and powerful software application for managing your business. POS can provide complete back-office processing, reporting, accounting, order entry and inventory, financial and customer reporting, and numerous other features that make it a complete "one system to rule them all" product. Once installed on your computer you can use POS to: Calculate cash register yields. Control and track inventory and product usage. Perform financial and customer reports. Accept credit card payments. Manage employees, sales transactions, and internal controls. Convert your cash register to an on-line electronic cash register. POS provides a single view of your business; giving you one "window" on your business. It is well-suited to bar, restaurant, convenience store, gas station, drug store, and any location where a "point of sale" system is needed. POS is the most powerful and complete point-of-sale system available. *(StreamLink High-Speed Web Server does not support QuickTime Player) Install and configure POS is easy to a window in the browser. POS is OS-independent; it can be used with Windows, Macintosh, and Unix-based operating systems. POS is usually installed on a stand-alone PC, however, the software can also be installed as a remote terminal to a real computer (through a serial line or over the Internet), as a virtual client, or on a networked machine. POS includes the most popular modules, as well as custom modules that are available. It can be used as an office/b

I'm trying to add a specific function to all TreeNodes, but I can't seem to safely reset the focus on the TreeNode's parent once its children are clicked. I tried using both; this.eventSource = null; this.eventSource = this.parentNode; And inside the Click function this.eventSource.focus(); this.eventSource.focus(); this.eventSource.focus(); I've tried to pass in the TreeNode the function I'm trying to achieve and to set the focus on the TreeNode inside the click function, but it will not let me reset focus at all on the TreeNode, it will just focus on the TreeNode's parent. I'm looking for a method that I can safely reset the focus on the TreeNode's parent once its children are clicked, without having to set focus on the TreeNode inside the Click function. Some examples of how I use this. A: You need to call blur() on the element that currently has focus. From the documentation: If the element is focused by the user, then it is automatically blurred when this method is called. Try element.blur(); A: Set it to null in the OnClick event handler? On doc, you will see there is a common method for all the controls with an event This is very similar to the one setfocus in the document but for the control you create, we only set the focus (not select) that way we
